ERROL FLYNN AGAIN

Have you ever heard the story about the pretty young thing from a small mid-western town who went to Hollywood in search of a career in pictures? No, well, here it is. Mina was a pretty little blond who had won first prize in the local beauty contest, and had made up her mind that she wanted to be a star in the movies, so she packed her suitcase and left for Hollywood. First Mina tried to crash the studio gates by flirting with the gatekeeper but that didn't work, then she tried to meet some of the big producers or directors who could help her get a screen test, but no such luck. Things soon went from bad to worse, and after six months without success, our little heroine gave up, and wrote her friends that she was coming home.

Upon her arrival at the station, Mina found all her friends there to meet her, bubbling over with curiosity and dying to find out what had happened in the glamor town. As soon as her boy-friend spotted her he rushed up and asked, "Darling, what's the score?" to which Mina very shyly replied: "No hits, no runs, no Errols."

Do you realize that history was made again when Prime Minister Churchill and President Roosevelt met to discuss war plans for the coming year? Yes, freedom's leaders met at Casablanca, which just goes to show how crowded Washington hotels really are.

Did you notice, though, that the President came home via Brazil? My, what people won't do for a second cup of coffee.

BUCK BENNY COMES TO TOWN.

Believe it or not, but Jack Benny is coming to Montreal this week, and that's good news for all the boys in the armed forces. According to latest reports, Mr. Benny will arrive here this coming Wednesday and be our guest for the day. Jack brings with him his wife, comedienne Mary Livingston, jovial Don Wilson, singer Dennis Day, and Eddie "Rochester" Anderson, Harlem's gift to radio. The Jack Benny gang will put on a show at the Forum on Wednesday night, and all men in uniform are welcome. Rumour has it that members of the McGill C.O.T.C. and U.A.T.C. are also invited.

CONGRATULATIONS

McGill has many of its sons taking an active part in the war effort of whom it can well be proud, and to add to this list, word has just been received in this corner of a recent Brockville graduate from McGill who has proven himself of such great responsibility that he has been offered command of the Middle East—between Papineau and Deloraine.

ODDS AND ENDINGS

On the radio you may hear that "the best songs of all go to Carnegie Hall," but on the campus its "the best students of all go to Purvis Hall." . . . The loss of President Frank Calder of the National Hockey League is indeed a very hard blow to hockey. Mr. Calder was both a guiding genius and an inspiration to the game he helped build.

Red Army Takes Kursk.

Kursk, bastion of the Germans' 1941-42 winter defence line, has fallen to the Russian drive in the north. The Red Army at the same time threatens Kharkov in a sudden flanking move against Rostov.

Canada Establishes Lend Lease Program.

Finance Minister J. L. Ilsley announced yesterday in the House of Commons that Canada would adopt a lend-lease system in the near future. The plan will enable Canada to put its war production more quickly on the fighting fronts.

Lorient Given Heaviest Bombing of War.

R.A.F. and R.C.A.F. planes yesterday bombed the Nazi submarine base of Lorient, with such force that there is little left undamaged. Rear gunners, 100 miles from the town, saw smoke spiralling well over a mile into the air.

Rum! Praises Canadian Economy.

Bearsley Rum! stated yesterday in Montreal that Canada had shown a greater understanding of its "pay-as-you-go" plan than the U.S. He commended Canada's war economy, particularly the anti-inflationary measures now in force.

Nominations Due for All Campus Posts

Must be Handed
In to Secretary
By Next Week

All nominations for campus posts must be handed in to Mr. Fletcher's office in the McGill Union within one week from today: the deadline is 2.30 p.m. Tuesday, February 16. The elections will take place approximately two weeks from that time: Election Day will be Wednesday, March 4.

Nominations are due for all major campus posts. The Students' Executive Council has called for nominations for the post of President of the Students' Society. Nominations for this position must be signed with the names of fifty undergraduates in good standing, men or women students.

Other Posts to Fill

In addition to that of President of the Students' Society, posts to be filled are those of President of the McGill Union, President of the Women's Union, Vice-President of the McGill Union, Secretary of the McGill Union, Secretary of the Women's Union, President of the McGill Debating Society, Vice-President of the McGill Debating Union Society, President of the McGill Women Students' Athletic Association, and Representative to the Athletics Board.

Nominations must be in writing, preferably in two or more copies. Twenty-five signatures are necessary for nominations to the executive positions in the McGill Union. All of these signatures must be those of men students. In the case of the Women's Union posts, twenty-five signatures must be attached to each nomination.

Ten signatures are sufficient for

Modern Verse Society's Topic

Literature Club
Hears S. S. Klein
Discuss Poetry

The Literature Society will meet today to hear Mr. A. M. Klein speak on the subject of modern poetry and will lead a discussion on the subject. The meeting will take place at the home of Theo. Mayer, 580 Cole St. Antoine road, at 8.15 p.m.

Mr. Klein is a McGill graduate and is now a lawyer in Montreal. His many poetical works have appeared in various periodicals and anthologies. In 1940 he published a volume of verse entitled "Hath Not a Jew" in whose introduction Ludwig Lewishon referred to Klein as "the first Jew to contribute authentic poetry to the literature of English speech." Mr. Klein is prominent in Zionist circles and is also the editor of "The Canadian Jewish Chronicle."

Membership in the literature club is open to all McGill students who are interested. The meetings are conducted informally and refreshments are served at the end.

Newman Club Appoints Nomination Committee

Last Sunday at a meeting of the Newman Club it was announced that a Nomination Committee had been set up. The head of this committee is Pat Barrett, and he will be assisted by Pierre Senecal, Alleen McGuire, and Dick Joy. Voting will be held at the next meeting and will be by secret ballot. The next meeting will be held on February 21.

The posts which are to be filled by these coming elections are as follows: President, Vice-President for men, Vice-President for Women, Treasurer, Male Secretary, and Female Secretary. All student members who are taking courses leading to degrees or diplomas are eligible for these posts. These students must be attending McGill during the session 1942-1943.

ILO Officials Meet in N.Y.

Representatives
Of U.S. Canada
Will Attend

Montreal, (I.L.O. Release)—United States and Canadian Government officials and representatives of the workers and employers of the two countries will meet in New York February 13 and 14 at the invitation of the International Labour Office, it was announced here today by Edward J. Phelan, Acting Director of the I.L.O.

Purpose of the meeting—seventh in a series held under I.L.O. auspices in the past two years—is to provide an opportunity for an exchange of views and information on problems connected with allocation of manpower to meet war needs, Mr. Phelan's announcement explained.

The meeting was originally scheduled to be held in New York last November 28 and 29, but was postponed at the request of the Canadian Government. The sixth meeting of the series was held in Montreal late last August.

The agenda of the gathering will cover two points. The first will be a discussion on developments in labor supply problems and policies since the August meeting, and the second is listed as "labor-management co-operation in organizing labor supply for war production."

More than 60 Americans and Canadians who are intimately involved in problems of labor supply are expected to attend. Americans invited include officials of the Department of Labor, the War Manpower Commission, the War Production Board, National Selective Service, United States Employment Service and the National Resources Planning Board. Canadians attending will include officials of the Department of Labor, Department of External Affairs, Department of National War Services and Department of Munitions and Supply.

Colleges and College Students Must Serve, Announces McNutt

Washington, (O.W.I. Release)—Until recently it would never have occurred to college students to think of themselves in terms of manpower, War Manpower Commission, Chairman McNutt told the mid-winter graduating class of Haverford, January 30—but, he said, they were like the man who was speaking prose and didn't realize his accomplishment.

A digest of Mr. McNutt's speech follows:

The term manpower is more frequently associated with the masses of workers employed by large-scale industry than with the fortunate minority of carefully educated individuals whom the colleges induct into professional and managerial life. So when you were registered for the national service you may have experienced something of the surprise of that character in Moliere's play who discovered that he had been talking prose without realizing his accomplishment.

Your government regards you as important, whether you are leaving college for the military or for other forms of national service, because

COTC to Omit Army Boots at Parade Friday

Those Attending
Dance in Uniform
Wear Soft Shoes

The C.O.T.C. has announced that the members of the Corps who are planning to attend the Arts and Science dance on Friday night may, if they wish, wear soft shoes to parade that evening. They will then not find it necessary to return home before going to the dance, in order to change from Army boots.

The dance, which has been named by the executive of the Arts and Science Undergraduate Society the "Hearts and Sighs" Hop, will be held in the Union Ballroom at 9.00 p.m. Friday evening. Blake Sewell and his orchestra will supply the music for the dancers, and for the entertainment of those who attend, a floor show will be put on during the course of the evening. The decorations will be based on the Valentine motif, so the President of the Society has announced, with hearts, and the usual Valentine themes.

Tickets are available from Bill Gentlemen in the Arts Building and from Alex in the Union Tuck Shop. They may also be purchased from any member of the Undergraduate Society Executive. The price will be $1.25 per couple.

'Campus Life' Deadline Nears

February 15
Is Date Set
For Entries

February 15 has been chosen by the Annual Board as the deadline for entries to the second "Campus Life" contest. No entries will be considered after this deadline.

The Photography Editor of the Annual stated yesterday that this second contest promises very fine results, and that enthusiasm shown on the campus has been very heartening.

Up to the present, however, comparatively few photographs have been submitted depicting coed activities on the campus, he pointed out. Shots dealing with the military activities are also lacking; in the connection the Photography Editor wishes to make clear that it would not be difficult for amateur photographers to secure permission to take a few snapshots of these activities.

Entries should be at least 3" x 4" or 3" x 5." If larger entries, of exceptional merit and showing typical campus scenes, are entered, they may be used as motifs for the title pages of Architecture, Arts, Commerce, R.V.C., Science, and Clubs and Societies.

Cosmopolitans to Meet At Thursday Luncheon

The weekly luncheon sponsored by the Cosmopolitan Club will take place on Thursday, February 11 at 1.00 p.m. in the McGill Union. These luncheon meetings are intended to give the Cosmopolitans a chance to meet regularly without interfering with their regular hours of study.

After lunch in the Union Cafeteria, the Club will adjourn to the Music Room at 1.30 p.m. to hear one of a series of talks on foreign countries and customs. The Executive announced that negotiations to secure a speaker for this week's meeting are in progress but they are not in a position to give any information on the topic.

Society Hears ILO Official

Stein Discusses Postwar Plans
At League Club

At a meeting of the McGill League of Nations Society this evening, Dr. O. Stein will discuss reconstruction and international problems in a speech entitled "Postwar Planning." The Society will meet in the Union Grill Room at 8.15 p.m.

Dr. Stein, who was born in Czechoslovakia, is an official of the International Labour Office. After his talk Dr. Stein hopes to lead a discussion along the lines that the subject indicates. He is experienced in the subject matter as he has been connected with the International Labour Office for several years.

Many booklets have been received by the Society since the last session and these will be loaned to the members. Those who borrowed books at the last meeting are asked to return them in order that they may be lent to others who are interested.

The executive wishes to draw attention to a meeting of the Montreal League of Nations Society at Montreal High School on Thursday at 8.30 p.m. when Miss K. D. Courtney will speak on "Planning For a New World."

Radio Group Broadcasts "Trial of Johnny Canucks"

Play Put on Yesterday
For Nutrition Campaign

Last night marked the second and last in a series of Nutrition broadcasts by the Radio Workshop. "The Trials of Johnny Canuck" was the name of the play, which was directed by Charles Wassermann, and written by Dorothy Taylor-Stoll. In the cast were: Stanley Eidinger, Duncan Cameron, Victor Goldbloom, Morris Miller, Dorothy Hopton, Jack Zimmerman, Dick Goldbloom, Avril Keiller, Blanche Lemo, Anne Hughes, Catherine Merritt, Phyllis Schechter, Phyllis Joseph, Doreen Wells, and Fred Hurter.

Members of the Montreal Nutrition Committee were present during the broadcast, and complimented the members of the Workshop both on the play and that of last Monday.

The story of this week's play centered around Johnny Canuck, an average Canadian citizen who is put on trial for his life by the various parts of his body, because they think he is neglecting them. He is brought into court on the charge of being responsible for an automobile accident. He denies the charge, saying that something went wrong with his engine, although he had taken good care of it. The rest of the play draws a parallel between the engine of Johnny Canuck's car and his body, and shows that, while he took good care of the former, he shamefully neglected the latter. He is defended by his Sense of Duty, who blames Mrs. Canuck for not feeding him the proper foods. Mrs. Canuck is told of this neglect, and promises to do better in the future.

The next production of the Workshop will be a comedy, "Two's Company," written and produced by Allan Thomson. Casting for this play will take place next Saturday afternoon in the Union Music Room at 2.30 p.m. All members of the Workshop are asked to be present.

Army's College Plan Outlined

Soldiers Will Study in U.S.
Institutions

Washington (OWI Release)—It is likely that educational opportunity for women in the U.S.A. will be destroyed in co-educational colleges taken over for the military specialized training program, Paul V. McNutt told reporters recently. The Chairman of the War Manpower Commission explained that there was no intention, as he understood it, of taking over an entire plant for educating soldiers; the load would be distributed as fairly as possible.

WMC officials disclosed that names of the colleges would be released piecemeal, probably by notification directly to the institutions as they are chosen by the Army-Navy-WMC committee. If public announcements are made, it was said, they will be timed so that they will not precede receipt of word by the colleges affected.

Further details of the plan were described earlier by Brig. Gen. Joe N. Dalton, Assistant Chief of Staff for Personnel, Services of Supply. The Army program will provide technical instruction for about 150,000 young soldiers each year, he said.

"These men . . . will spend from 12 to 48 weeks in classrooms, laboratories, and study halls preparing for special duties in such services as the Air Forces, Corps of Engineers, Medical Department, Chemical Warfare, Signal Corps and the Adjutant General's Division."

Of discipline, General Dalton said: "Each unit of the Army Specialized Training Program will be under a commandant whose military (Continued on Page Two)

Concert To be Held Thursday Night in Plateau Auditorium

McGill students have been invited by the students of l'Universite de Montreal to attend the second of a series of concerts sponsored by their Societe Artistique. The concert will feature Jean Dickenson, internationally known radio and opera star, and will take place in the Plateau Auditorium, Thursday, February 11, at 8.30 p.m.

Film Story Tells Of Nomad Tribe In Iran of Today

Age-old Customs
Of Herdsmen Live
In Story of "Grass"

By M.E.

"Grass," the film story of a nomadic Persian tribe of 50,000 men, women and children, who set out in search of what is to them "the staff of life," was presented by the Zoological Department last evening in Moyse Hall as the second in their series of biological films.

The filming was done by two men and one woman who were the first white men ever to be allowed to cross the Zardah Kun Pass into this part of Persia. The film starts off with a portrayal of the journey of the producers from the time they set out near Angora in Asia Minor until they reach the Baktyral tribe in the highlands of Persia. For months the producers travel through barren desert, and across snow covered mountains with their camels and donkeys, stopping overnight at lonely fortresses, following a caravan route protected by a desert patrol, and all the time they travel the centuries flow backwards. They pass men who shoot with the old gunpowder rifles, and who make their fires with flint and steel until at last they come to the forgotten tribe of the Baktyral.

Dr. Steinberg of the Genetics Department will address the Women's Science Club at 5.00 p.m. in the R.V.C. Common Room.

Thursday:

Cosmopolitan Club luncheon takes place in the Union Grill Room.

Coming:

The "Hearts and Sighs" Hop will feature Blake Sewell and his orchestra on Friday night. . . . The Cosmopolitan Club holds its Masquerade on February 28. . . . Daily Sleigh Ride will take place on February 18.

The special student rate granted to l'Universite de Montreal students has been extended to McGill students; both will buy tickets for the concert at $0.85. General admission for the public, who are also being invited, will be $1.25. Tickets may be bought at the Union Tuck Shop.

This concert is the second of the University's annual series in the course of which well-known artists are presented to the students. The series is sponsored by la Societe Artistique de l'Universite de Montreal.

Jean Dickenson has sung in concert recital, on the radio, and in opera. At present she is heard every Sunday night on the program "American Album of Familiar Music."

She was born in Montreal and received her early musical training here. Her operatic debut was made at the Metropolitan Opera House, on January 26, 1940, when she sang the role of Philine in "Mignon."

Miss Dickenson has sung on the radio for the past five years; she has sung in recitals and as soloist with symphony orchestras across Canada and the United States.

Very favourable comment has greeted Miss Dickenson in the course of her artistic career, and la Societe Artistique feels that in presenting her it is making a concrete addition to the musical season in Montreal.

Economic Ideas To be Discussed

Veblen's Theories
Will Be Expounded
By McGill Grads

The Political Economy Club will hold its next meeting on Thursday, February 11, in the Union Grill Room at 8.00 p.m. The subject under discussion will be the Social and Economic Theories of Thorstein Veblen, and the speakers will be Harold Finestone and Boris Garmaise. The Sociology Club, including the female members, are invited to attend.

Harold Finestone is a graduate student and an assistant in the Department of Sociology; he is a former University Scholar. Boris Garmaise is a graduate of McGill and is now in his first year Law.

Veblen, whose theories of Economics and Sociology the speakers are going to expound, was the son of a Norwegian immigrant farmer in the U.S. He taught at many universities including Harvard and Chicago, and his most famous book is "The Theory of the Leisure Class."

Although he was an Economist, Veblen's ideas have affected many sociologists, and his ideas have given rise to the study of Institutional Economists.

Canadian Reminiscences

by Francis Allen

My very first impression, and an impression that was never to be changed, was that Canada is a country of infinite beauty. As the boat sped its way leisurely up the St. Lawrence on that date late in July, I was amazed by the richness and variegated hues of the foliage along the banks, with the blue haze of the mountains in the distance. As the sun went further and further down, so the bright almost gaudy flashes of colour softened and mellowed until the mountains alone were discernible as gentle dark contours above which hung, like a smoking oil lamp just before it is extinguished, a soft yellow luminous haze.

Arrived in Montreal and having started school, I began very slowly the re-orientation which is essential if any degree of sympathy is to be developed between the stranger and his new environment. I must stress the fact that it was slow, because I tried very hard at first to remain aloof from these "Crude colonials." An English school boy just turned fifteen is apt to regard himself, and his own opinions very seriously. If these opinions have been based on the teachings of his good old "public" school, and on the principles laid down by British Toryism, they must of necessity be regarded as permanent and irrefutable for the simple reason that they have been poured into you by your parents and associates for as far back as you can remember.

The process of thawing out these dicta, and also of extracting certain personal attributes which could have been nothing but distasteful to my new companions, brought me to the stunning realization that there were other points of view, and furthermore that some of these opinions had to be considered, whether they clashed with preconceived notions or not.

It was only after I had successfully passed through the period of being purged of these fairly representative national prejudices, that I was in a position actually to comment upon my observations with any degree of comprehension. Possibly I can best begin by referring to the general standards of life, customs, and national characteristics. (If such attributes exist, as I believe they do with some reservations.)

From my own experience, Canadians as they probably know better than anybody else, are essentially reserved. What they probably do not realize, but what is outstanding to the stranger is the fact that their reserve springs in most cases from a political and sentimental loyalty to England, and the tremendous cultural and commercial influence of the United States. This conflict is senseless, because if it continues it will finally end in a victory for one side or the other, and Canada will simply be a duplicate or imitation of whichever side wins.

Some of the worst aspects of this trend are in evidence in the social life of the people. Very simple and apparently innocent examples are a fanatic attachment to swing music, the dedication of the soap opera characters, the flooding of Canadian Book stalls with American periodicals, and the virtual monopoly of American made pictures in Canadian theatres. It is possible to say that all these together combine to act as a soporific upon the national consciousness, stifling by the sum total of its mass desire or realization for anything representative of Canada.

Nature abhors a vacuum; try to create one by taking the air away from a certain organ, and you will find unless you are very careful that different air will come from elsewhere.

If a goodly percentage of what is after all little better than the dregs of what Americans fondly call their culture were to be removed, there would be something far better to take its place. Hundreds of Canadians with enormous talent have been too shy to produce their work, because they know perfectly well that they stand no possible chance of competing with the obscene American machine, which as the monster in the Faerie Queen, spews forth a stream of mediocre literature two thirds of which is controlled by men whose deliberate purpose it is to keep the public misinformed. I refer specifically to such men as William Randolph Hearst and Henry Luce.

Within the next few years the United States is going to pass through Gethsemane; there are all the evidences of a coming rise to supreme Fascist power, which many commentators have tried unsuccessfully to call to the attention of the people. I do not want the same to happen to Canada; frankly I like Canada better than the United States, (although I was for a time infatuated with the gloss and hard sophistication of the U.S.) Canada, in spite of reports to the contrary gets things done, and she gets them done without a lot of blaring and childish conceit; maybe it would be better in some ways if she were to simulate more aggressiveness in regard to her own accomplishments, because people who do not know her very well are liable to regard her as dull.

The most remarkable national characteristic of Canada is her humanity; it is in splendid contrast to the almost prevailing policy of grab what you can of the U.S.

I do not believe that it is necessary for me to explain myself, when I say that Canada is humane, all that you have to do is to look around you at the smallest occurrences of everyday life, the politeness of store assistants, the kindness of labourers to one another, the reasonableness and honesty of business negotiations. There are of course exceptions, but all these trifling examples taken generally add up to what may be known as the National Character.

Already Canada is producing signs of her slowly growing culture; small examples such as the splendid documentary films produced at Ottawa dealing mainly with the war, the fact that the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation is producing more and more of its own programmes many of which are excellent, and locally, the remarkable improvement even within a few months of the Montreal Symphony Orchestra, and the springing up within a short time of other symphonic groups within this city.

All this is good, but not nearly good enough. Canada has no heritage of literature, and with-

It's the Fashion

by Julia Camo

"ROUND AND ROUND SHE GOES."

Whether or not you believe that history repeats itself and that economic plenty and scarcity appear in cyclic order, you'll still have to agree that as far as fashion is concerned, it's just one big merry-go-round. Remember the disgust with which you used to look at those knee length, low-waisted skirts that went up with the stocks just before '29. Well, don't they resemble, in theory if not in fact, our '43 short skirts and low torso waists. Remember those long shapeless sweaters that we used to laugh at about three years ago whenever we looked over an old fashion magazine or saw an out-of-date movie. Take a look at our sloppy Joe's. The resemblance isn't too subtle to be missed. And, most peculiar of all, who would have admitted that those hats worn by the Miss America's of the '20's would ever come back into circulation? But that a look at our "cloches." If they don't look like a pot turned upside down, we take everything back. We could go on with the story comparing the reappearances of kerchiefs, bows on shoes, collars and cuffs, wool stockings, hairdos, and even laced corsets.

"OH, DEAR, WHAT CAN THE MATTER BE?"

Now it's not a case of Johnny having gone to the Fair to buy you a bunch of blue ribbons, but that he has gone to fight the foe and that you have promised not to go walking down lover's lane till he comes marching home. And in the meantime, there are a lot of ways you can help shorten the time until he does come marching home. Not the least of these is by care and thriftiness in your buying. This applies at this time of year particularly, when you are thinking of new spring outfits. Remember that every article of goods you buy was produced by somebody whose time might have been used to make munitions, and that the money you spend might have been used to buy War Savings stamps. The type of advertising done by so many stores nowadays show that even they realize this. They are giving you advice on how to care for your clothes, how to mend them, clean them and alter their appearance at little or no expense. Why don't you make their motto yours? "Buy only what you need, take care of what you have."

"PUT ON YOUR RED AND WHITE SWEATER"

Last year a number of McGill coeds were wearing their boyfriends' sweaters. From this we thought, that it mightn't be such a bad idea if some of the gals got to wearing McGill men's sweaters. You know the warm white pullovers trimmed with red. T.V-necks would go well with your Toodle skirts too.

How about letting Veronica Lake's peek-a-boo bang sleep at peace in its grave? It is having a post-mortem existence on a lot of coeds around McGill, while it has practically out any literary history a country can have no organized soul. By now, possibly someone is saying to himself that I am overstressing the cultural angle, and asking "What the hell does he mean by an organized soul anyway?"

Any group of people if they are to unite must have a common aim, and therefore a common spirit. That aim is sometimes very clearly defined and very simple to understand. Thus everyone in the United Nations knows that just at present it is the common purpose to win the war. But the common aim cannot in all cases be so well designated or expressed in a compact shape, whereby the world or indeed the participants of that community are able to recognize it.

The organized soul of Germany is best centralized in Faust, of England in Mr. Pickwick, of the United States in the writings of Hemingway and Dos Passos.

So far I have discussed my reactions pretty generally, with reference to Canada as an entity. In the way of conclusion I shall dissect a few more intimate observations, which have been brought about from personal experience.

I like Montreal. I like it in spite of its 30 degrees below zero weather, in spite of the fact that its streetcars never come, and its night clubs are closed almost before you have had time to finish dinner. I like Montreal because it is a city with character, and because it is a beautiful city to look at, and mainly I like it because of the people I know in it, charming hosts, and convivial and in some cases raucous associates whom I shall be sorrier to leave even for a time than I can hope to express myself.

As for my experience out West, I suppose that no other occurrence had ever shown me what it is to be on your own in a completely new environment without substantial funds, and the necessity to rely upon what I delight in calling my own initiative. Yet even this illusion was not quite complete, because of the considerable assistance which I received from Professor Culliton. But incomplete as the illusion may have been, it served well enough to show that life is not always and will not always be the same rationalized security which we are so prone to regard as being permanent.

I suppose that I should say something about McGill, because at McGill I have come into contact with so many people and experiences which have helped to change me. One remarkable thing about this University is the fact that of all the people whom I have come to know intimately, there has been not one who has been anything like what is the usual conception of University undergraduates, pleasure loving, extravagant and dissipated. Maybe it is the war that has rendered them serious. Logical thinkers and of what the preachers call high moral character, but what I would simply call intelligent living, maybe it is because I have only come to know individuals of one particular type, but I believe and hope sincerely that these conditions are untrue, that the people I know here are representative of the whole university, and therefore pretty well representative of the whole of Canada, so that when I return to England and people ask me what I think of Canada, I shall be able to say "Whatever you may care to think of her past, from all the young people that I have met over there, I can assure you that her future is going to be damned good."

The Simpler The Smarter

The great thing today is to cultivate our taste for simple, long-wearing clothes. Here's a classic as pretty and flattering as they come, a two-piece in a pre-tested rayon crepe with staccato printed dot. What's more, it is a fashion that welcomes the question "Will the fabric wear well?" and "Will it stay fresh through dry-cleaning?" because the answers are on the tag on the dress! You and all Canadian women are deeply concerned today in such matters, since clothes must have prolonged lives. It is making you take tags and labels very seriously... making you read directions for care, and hoard such information for future use.

disappeared in favour of feather cuts and pig tails on the American campus.

We heard one working girl who walked through the campus the other day remark on the sulky morose expressions of some of Miss Lake's imitators, and while we were not happy about it we found difficulty in denying it. All we could say that "those are only a few of the McGill girls. They're not all like that." The ideal college girl is no longer a glamorous exotic Garbo but a charming, natural human being with a sense of humour and some evidence of intelligence.

"WHAT WILL THEY THINK OF NEXT?"

University of Kentucky: Cardigan sweaters lined with gay prints and with blouses to match are being worn down here. Plaid socks are another innovation that brightens up sweaters and skirts.

University of British Columbia: The fashion writer for the "Ubbysy," is telling the girls about an American coed who instead of wearing one brooch attached a number to her pin cushion and wore IT, with very interesting results. ... sounds like the return of the street pedlar.

Vaihalla, New York: Instead of putting initials on collars and cuffs, Vaihalla girls are decorating their blouses with flowers with button centres and embroidered petals. Kinda cute idea!

and Navy plan. Haverford, I know, will in a few days start the training of a unit of pre-meteorological students, destined to become weather officers in the Army Air Force. But what about those colleges, with standards no less admirable than our own, which are outside the general Army and Navy plan and are also overlooked in special training plans? Is their place in the war effort to be confined to yielding their students to the draft and restricting their services to the education of the handful who are under 18, or physically unfit?

In cases where the college is a virile institution, serving its community as well and alertly administered, I feel sure the answer to that question will be in the negative. Some private colleges, like some private business organizations, may have to close their doors for the duration, reopening afterwards if there is the effective demand for their services which is the acid test of whether or not these services are needed. Such war casualties, however, should be few in number. If the colleges themselves show the initiative which is one test of the validity of their claim to survival.

Washington is not Berlin and we do not propose to regiment our colleges to any standardized program of State-directed service. Washington will not dictate a uniform plan of action to the colleges. But I can assure you that both the War Manpower Commission and the United States Office of Education, which also comes under my jurisdiction as Federal Security Administrator, are keenly interested in all efforts which the colleges, individually or collectively, make in their own interests. I recall that Dr. John W. Studebaker, the Commissioner of Education, said: "We must have a special concern lest the liberal arts colleges of America be jettisoned." I would like to go on record as sharing that concern.

In the provision of manpower we do not expect much quantitative help from the small Liberal Arts colleges. But we do expect important qualitative assistance, both for the preservation and improvement of our own way of life and for the eventual establishment of a better international order.

with their tents that consist of canvas strung over posts, and their primitive life, date back to 3,000 years ago.

The chief calls the tribesmen to his tent and there tells them that they and their cattle will be starving soon because the drought has come and there is no grass for the herds. Everything is bound to the backs of the horses, camels, and donkeys, including the puppies, the chickens, the aged and the luggage. The women carry cradles holding their babies on their backs; the men drive the donkeys and keep the herds from spreading.

Over rugged hills, through barren rocky country they travel until at last they come to the mighty river Karun. There are no bridges and they have no boats. Inflated goat skins whose holes have been plugged by bits of wood serve to float thin rafts which carry their goods across the swift rapids of the river. The cattle swim and many are lost beneath the cold glacial waters of the roaring water. Six days are spent in the crossing and when the tribe reorganizes itself on the other side, there are still some one hundred and fifty miles of mountains to be crossed. Week after week they struggle up the steep rocks. Even the women help carry the calves on their backs in their attempt to save as many of the cattle as possible. Finally they reach the snow, and barefoot they dig paths for the herds and made their own weary way onward ever giving their battle cry of victory, "Yo Ah!" From the top of the mountain they can at long last look down on their promised land, the land of Grass.

The film tells the story well and the photography is excellent. Atmospheric music from Rimsky-Korsakov and Stravinsky enhances the atmosphere. The movie was well worth seeing, and although the titles were rather melodramatic, they did not detract from the high value of the film.

MacDonald Advances to Finals in Cage Tourney

Swamps McGill Flyers in Intercompany Fixture; All-Star League To be Formed This Week

Macdonald College defeated a strong McGill Flyers team Saturday afternoon at Ste. Anne's, to enter the final round of the intercompany basketball league. Led by Chapman and Mackey the Green and Gold quintet outfought the McGill cage squad to gain a 33 to 20 victory.

Red Wilson, stellar forward for the McGill Seniors, opened the scoring by sinking one from close in shortly after the opening whistle, but Chapman and Mackey returned to put Macdonald in the lead. They were never closely challenged again. Capitalizing on their scoring chances Mackey and Privett were the high scorers for the first half for Macdonald, while Wilson alone starred with the Red team. With 12 minutes left to play in the first half Art Mackey, a constant threat, turned his ankle on a jump, and was unable to play further.

EVEN FIGHT

The second half saw better basketball, with both teams fighting hard for possession, and few points being scored. Wilson and Allen each managed to net two, while Zalkind gathered one. In turn the Macdonald team sank seven.

The McGill squad was hampered by the small floor and the overhanging gallery, but they also seemed to lack the spirit to win.

The individual star of the game was Ron Wilson with eleven points to his credit, while Mackey, Privett and Chapman were all equally good for the winners.

Other Game Postponed

With this semi-final game played off, there remains but one other semi-final before the Intercompany champions are selected. However, this may take a week or ten days. The other game to be played is between D Coy. and Unat-1. This latter team is composed of second year medical students, who are at present studying for exams. They cannot therefore turn out for a game in the immediate future. However, this game can probably be played early next week, and the way paved for the final.

This leaves basketball pretty quiet this week. During this time it is expected that plans will have been made concerning the proposed All-Star League. This league would consist of four teams, one each from the two wings of the C.O.T.C., from the U.A.T.C., and from the Unattached. Such a league would be composed of the best players from the Intercompany squads, and would undoubtedly feature an excellent brand of ball. It is hoped that plans will be pretty definite by the end of the week.

Senior Games

At that time the two McGill entries in the M.B.L. and Services leagues will be out to collect more scalps in their individual efforts to top the standings. Friday night the Red Raiders meet Pats in an important contest in which victory will place them close to second place. The O.T.C. team meets Longue Pointe in the other contest. Both of these games will be played at the Sir Arthur Currie Gym, and will run concurrently. This makes it indefinite as to whether the two recruits from the Services team, Evans and Rosentzweig, will play for the Seniors. However since the junior team has a few new players, it is quite possible that they will be able to get along without the aid of these two stellar performers.

Little Known Animals

The Side-Hill Gouger—By Cyrus Alexander B. Contour, (In the Sheaf)

It has at times amazed me when I have encountered the ignorance existent upon this campus concerning some of the little known animals that are so useful in the basic operations of industrial or technical development. One of these is the mopper's best friend, the Side-Hill Gouger. He is a strange little fellow, the stories about him are many and some of them I am afraid are apocryphal but I will pass them on to you because they all illustrate some of his most important characteristics.

Many years ago in the hills of Montana a group of typical surveyors were out on line survey. Although my grasp of the subject is not strong, I believe that so far as research was determined they were surveying a railroad grade. Because of the roughness of the country and the loneliness about them they fortified themselves with many doses of a potent cure for boredom. Being kind men they also gave some to their pet badgers, Sue and Ike.

This was a fatal mistake. They found that the addition of Beersman Breakfast Food brought the animals to an intelligence not known of before. They were almost capable of being rodden. In fact, it was noticed in a few weeks

Coeds Compete In Swim Meet

Intersection Contest Takes Place Tonight In Y.W.C.A. Pool

This coed Intersection Swim Meet is being held tonight at 8.00 p.m. in the Y.W.C.A. pool on Dorchester Street West. The meet will consist of competitions in swimming and diving. No special teams have been formed for the meet, but all entries will be post entries, and the swimming manager, Molly Chanler, has expressed the hope that there will be a good turnout.

The only restriction on entrants is that there be but one contestant from each section in each event. All in all there will be eight different competitions, four in swimming and four in diving. In swimming there will be the 25 yd. breast stroke, 25 yd. back crawl, 50 yd. free style, and a relay. The dives will be: plain standing, plain running, jack knife, and one optional fancy dive. Contestants need bring only their own bathing caps. Everything else will be provided at the pool.

The swimmers have in the meantime been practising for the Red and White Relay to be put on some time next month. This will consist of an exhibition of fancy swimming and combined acts, and should be very good. At the conclusion of the swimming season, the coeds will probably hold a mixed splash party, in which the girls will bring their friends. This, it is expected, will put a crowning touch to a successful season.

not definite although it is said they are very necessary for mountain survey.

If my reader has fully understood the main characteristics of the animal I will proceed to give some more specialized data on it. At this time though, I must admit that this article could not have been written, especially the following paragraphs without the help of Zeke Campbell who is probably the world's greatest living authority on these useful animals.

It has been found that the use of this animal in contour work is faultless within its limitations. Once the surveyor has carried it to a certain level it will stay at the level until it is carried to another. It gives the slope of the land automatically besides correcting the surveyor if he has put him on a wrong interval.

The refusal to go on its own free-will from one level to another has been exasperating as also the clockwise and counterclockwise tendencies. A tragic example of this is of one surveyor who tried to do a clockwise job by using 2 counter-clockwise gouger and was last heard of in the Andes still trying to get back on the 1,000 foot contour. One of these animals was brought to a job on the prairie near Regina but it died of a broken heart and has not been heard of since.

Although it is one of the most important animals in surveying today, completely taking the place of the now almost extinct contour weasels, the gouger is relatively scarce. Except for the Alberta, and Montana flocks, the only other trained tribe is the one that belongs to Cyril C. Benchmark of Hodgeville, Virginia. In fact several animals escaped from Cyril and bred themselves in the wild state. Though they hide in the daytime, it can be seen where they live by the paths tracing out the contours in the various hills around Hodgeville.

A picture of this phenomenon can be seen in the Outlines of Geology, page 54. Although the geologists are of the opinion that it was traced out by grazing cattle, Cyril Benchmark and the citizens of Hodgeville assure me it was done by the Side-Hill Gouger. It is said that when one oldtime surveyor saw the hills of Hodgeville he sat down and drank himself to death. His dying words were, "To think that I worked five years at the turn of the century to find out what those 'g&g' animals did in six months all alone."

The next article in this series will be on the Geologists Pocket Puncturing Screwworm that is doing such fine work for defence in the oil fields of Texas.

Feb. 16 Is Date For Coed Coast On Mount Royal

Evenet Will Feature Sliding, Skating, Dancing

By D. K.
Sadie Hawkins, the eminent Dogpatch belle, now a well-mannered graduate of a finishing school, has been complaining in a most respectable way about the Coed Coast publicity in the Daily.

"You objected to me when I was rough and wild," the young lady lamented, "but people at least knew when I arrived. Why I believe only half the college realizes there's to be a Coed Coast at the Park Toboggan Club, on Tuesday, February 16th."

We hastened to vindicate ourselves by saying that this event had already been announced in the Daily. However, in case the fair damsel's fears were justified we promised to give a fuller account of plans for the evening in today's issue.

Because of the war Sadie's sway has been cut down from one week to one night, but on February 16th the old "turn-about time" spirit will reign supreme. The M.W.S.A.A. in charge of the event, has announced that sliding will begin early in the evening, and will continue till about 10.30 p.m. Those who prefer skating are at liberty to use the Beaver Pond Rink; and of course anyone wishing to bring his or her skis may do so.

When the girls and boys are tired of being athletic they may repair to the clubhouse for dancing in slacks, and stocking feet. No ski boots on the dance floor, please! Music will be provided by the club's orchestra; and refreshments will be on sale.

Coeds are reminded that, as this is the only Sadie Hawkins event of the year, a large turnout is expected. The number of tickets is limited, and girls intending to go would be wise to obtain theirs as soon as possible. Tickets may be purchased for the price of $1.00 from any of the section athletic representatives.

Coeds Score in Ski Competition

McGill Skiers Place Fourth in Mt. Tremblant Meet

The McGill coeds made a good showing for themselves this past Sunday at the ski meet held at Mt. Tremblant. The meet, held Sunday morning, attracted eight teams. The McGill entry, with only four members on the squad, copped fourth place in the combined.

Wearing the Red colors were Joan Anderson, Margaret Burden, Margaret Turner Bone and Audrey Bovey. Miss Burden made the best showing of these in any single event, as she sped down the downhill to wind up in fourth position. Joan Anderson and Audrey Bovey came in nineteenth and twentieth respectively in this event. In the slalom Miss Turner Bone placed very well.

The team as a whole placed third in the downhill and fourth in the slalom. Penguins walked away with first place for the seventh time in ten years. Toronto wound up in second place and Ottawa in third. Joan Anderson and Margaret Burden will be competing again this coming Sunday in the Taschereau Downhill Ski Meet being held this Sunday at Mt. Tremblant.

The mistress of the house heard the bell ring, and saw a Chinese peddler standing at the front door. Quickly retreating, she called out to the maid: "There's a Chinese at the door. You go, Ella."

That was too much for the peddler. He stuck his head in the door and shouted indignantly, "You go 'ella yourself!'"

COED SWIMMING.
On Tuesday, February 9, at 8.00 p.m., an Inter-Section Swim Meet will be held in the Y.W.C.A. pool on Dorchester street. There will be competition in both swimming and diving, and the swimming manager has specified that girls need not be shy about entering events. Anyone may compete, and thus help support her section.

Bathing suits and towels will be provided, but contestants are asked to bring their own bathing caps.

WAR SERVICE PROGRAMME FOR WOMEN

February 8, 1943.

NOTICE.

Many students have asked for leave from War Service classes this week on account of the present pressure of monthly examination tests. Such leave cannot be granted. Women students will realize that it would be unfair to grant special consideration to them when comparable leave is not extended to the men in connection with their military training requirements.

COMMUNITY WELFARE

Both sections meet at the School for Social Work this week.

HOME NURSING

Examinations will be held this week for students attending the courses given at the Montreal General. Students in the Thursday class will be notified next week as to their next procedure.
R.V.H. classes will meet at the Demonstration Room of the Nurses' Residence R.V.H., as usual.

ALL OTHER CLASSES AND COURSES AS USUAL

NOTE—Students in Home Nursing and First Aid are reminded that the Red Cross Society and St. John Ambulance Society will not permit a candidate to appear for examination unless attendance is adequate, regardless of what her reasons for absence may be.

(Signed) JOYCE M. TYRRELL,
Exec. Director,
W.S.P.W.

Don't Be Fooled — — —

"FOOL me once," says the proverb, "and it's shame on you. Fool me twice and it's shame on me."

Don't be fooled when it comes to spending your money. Patronize the merchants who have a reputation for fair dealing and honesty. Such motives must actuate the consistent advertiser. The man who invests real money in building a reputation for himself and his merchandise cannot afford to risk any of it by taking unfair advantage of his patrons.

The consistent advertiser pays money to tell you about his goods. He knows they are good—he backs them with his money because he believes they will satisfy. Only merchandise which is consistently good can be consistently advertised.

So advertising protects you against fraud and inferiority. It tells you what is new and good, making you a wise buyer. It saves you money by pointing out for your consideration only the best products and the best places to buy them.

Thrifty men and women read the advertisements. To them it is a plain every-day business proposition—a duty they owe to themselves and to their pocketbooks.

Don't be fooled.

Don't spend your money blindly.
Read the advertisements.
